Memorandum for: Deputy Director/Intelligence

Last night I spent some time with a mutual friend of ours who is presently on two weeks active duty and taking the Strategic Intelligence School reserve officers' course.

Our friend was extremely complimentary on the caliber of lecturers provided to the course by CIA, but placed special emphasis on Waldo Duberstein's performance. Of all the lecturers in the course, our friend stated that Duberstein had made the best impression and gotten the biggest hand. He also felt that [] performance on Western Europe had been quite thoughtful.
